

Please do not allow the CBA's petition to weaken Indiana's telephone privacy law to pass. Since joining the no-call list, I have enjoyed the absolute lack of unwanted phone calls. Because I am not being pestered by telephone solicitors, I don't have to be short, forceful, or downright rude in order to extricate myself from the call.

The no-call list is brilliant. CBA is delusional and, should their petition be successful, I will re-think my relationships with those companies who think they will find a willing ear when they call my home.
